

Hannah Cranor-Kersting is a third-generation cattle rancher, born and raised in Gunnison, Colorado, where she was an active 4-H member. She attended school at the University of Wyoming where she majored in Agricultural Business with an emphasis in Farm and Ranch Management. After graduation, she returned to Gunnison to help with the family cattle ranch. She also started her own herd of registered Charolais cattle, from which she sells beef, replacement heifers and bulls. She is working towards completing a master's degree in Agricultural Sciences at CSU where she works as the Gunnison County CSU Extension Director and Agriculture Specialist. Outside of work Hannah enjoys Crossfit, snowmobiling, dirtbiking, running with her four dogs, and spending time with her husband, Lane.
